FROM THE PRESIDENT & CEO

Leading in uncertain times

by Wayne Miller
President & CEO

DUE TO the retirement of Valley Rural Electric President & CEO Ed Dezich, your board of directors has selected me to step forward and lead the cooperative in that role.

I am honored to serve as your new president. For more than 30 years, I have worked for electric co-ops in Pennsylvania, most recently as vice president at Valley.

Over the past three decades, I have both witnessed and been a part of dramatic changes in the energy industry. I believe, however, that the greatest challenges may lie ahead.

Ongoing market turbulence and economic uncertainty have caused most Americans to grow nervous about their financial futures. Statistics show we are spending less than we did last year. We're cutting back on unnecessary purchases, avoiding extra trips in our cars and reducing our reliance on credit (though not always by choice).

As we trim our budgets wherever possible, we are still forced to pay for necessities like food, gasoline and electricity. And those costs keep going up. It seems each week, more concerned co-op members call to ask us tough questions like, "What will happen to my electric rates in the future?" or "Considering the increasingly stringent regulations on power production, how do you plan to keep electricity affordable and still meet the growing demand?"

Addressing these issues is important, and I can assure you that they are at the forefront of discussions at both large-scale political venues and smaller-scale co-op board and employee meetings.

I wish I could say that we have all the right answers. The truth is, we are battling to avoid costly rate increases while still delivering a reliable, adequate supply of clean power to the hardworking citizens we serve.

The good news is that your co-op remains in a sound financial position, well-equipped to tackle the issues that face us. How can I claim that with confidence? Well, thanks to strong foresight and savvy business decisions made over the past decades, we own about 61 percent of our electric generation. That helps shelter us from the volatility and skyrocketing prices of electricity purchased on the open market. Many private power companies have not fared as well.

In addition, the basic principles of the cooperative model provide checks and balances that keep the organization on course and ensure that the business runs solely for the benefit of its members. We are owned by the consumers we serve, not by profit-driven shareholders whose traders riskily move your money around in search of the highest return. Although we don't benefit from huge windfall profits when the risks pay off, we also don't lose our shirts — or the confidence of our consumers — when they don't.

Make no mistake, we are entering uncharted territory. We know we're going to have to roll up our sleeves and work hard to come up with affordable energy solutions. But as we have done for the past 70 years, we stand ready to help you weather the storms.

Will you help us find these consumers?

IN APRIL, Valley Rural Electric sent capital credits checks totaling more than $932,000 to current and former members of the cooperative. Since that time, approximately 320 of those checks have been returned by the post office because of incorrect address information.

We are making every effort to return this money to its rightful owners. Listed on the following pages are the names of consumers whose checks cannot be delivered. If you recognize a name and can provide an up-to-date address (or information about the executor of the estate or nearest relative if the member is deceased), please call us at 814/643-2650 or toll-free 800/432-0680. You can also write to the Capital Credits Department, Valley REC, P.O. Box 477, Huntingdon, PA 16652-0477. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.

Help prevent garage safety hazards

As the most well-worn entryway to our homes, garages tend to collect a hodgepodge of various household items. Within inches of toys, bikes and balls, we store dangerous toxins like insecticides, turpentine and gasoline.

To help promote safety and reduce the hazards associated with your storage space, check out the tips below.

DOOR DANGER — The overhead door is most likely the largest and heaviest door in your house and has the potential to cause crushing or pinching injuries. Test your garage door opener's reversing mechanism to make sure it is working properly. Place a 2x4 under the door. When the door touches the wood, it should immediately reverse and go back up. If it doesn't, replace it.

UNSAFE STORAGE — Be sure to store dangerous chemicals out of the reach of children, or better yet, in a locked cabinet. Also, keep chemicals in their original containers with the labels clearly legible. Avoid purchasing chemicals in large quantities. While it might make sense to buy a case of canned vegetables at the local supermarket warehouse, storing leftovers from a six-pack of ant poison isn't worth the risk.

Store combustibles like gasoline, propane and kerosene in containers designed especially for them. Gasoline cans, for example, have special vents to avoid the dangerous build up of combustible fumes. Storing gas in anything else is an explosion waiting to happen.

Common tools can also pose safety hazards if put away improperly. Ladders, for example, should always be stored horizontally so that children cannot climb on them. Rakes, hedge trimmers and shovels scattered on the floor or leaning against a wall can easily cause injuries. To be safe, get as many of your tools off the floor as possible.

ELECTRICAL SAFETY — Electricity and water don't mix, which is why all garage circuits should be protected with a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI). While regular circuit breakers are designed to prevent wires from overheating and causing a fire, a GFCI breaker is specifically designed to prevent electrocution. A GFCI can be installed at an outlet or in the main circuit breaker panel.

Also, keep power tools, extension cords and adapters unplugged and stored out of the reach of children.

FIRE SAFETY — Make sure all walls and ceilings between your garage and your house are constructed with at least 5/8-inch thick drywall and that any attic stairs are covered with sheet metal. This "fire wall" helps build fire resistance between the space and the rest of your home.

Make sure your garage has a fire extinguisher rated "A-B-C." This means the extinguisher can handle all types of fires, including fires from wood and paper, electricity and gasoline or grease.

Install smoke and carbon monoxide detectors in the space and test them regularly.

Finally, check with your insurance agent to make sure the contents of your garage are covered in case of fire or other damage. ☀
