Clothes lines, morning glory vines and gas grills – the stuff co-op summers are made of

by Doug Roles
Director of Member Services

HAY FIELDS are ready for a first cutting. Orange barrels and road construction signs are popping up on the highways and back roads, too. And the kids are finally out of school. It's the start of what could be another long, hot summer in central Pennsylvania.

Those hazy, hot and humid days that lend themselves so well to swimming, fishing and back porch sitting also bring the threat of high electric bills. Rising temperatures and muggy summer nights can cause your electric bill to shoot up as fast as the mercury in your thermometer.

Being mindful of your hot weather power use begins with your cooling plan. Consider this: The U.S. Department of Energy reports air conditioning accounts for as much as half of the average household's electric bill. So maintaining your cooling system and using it wisely saves dollars and makes sense.

Get started by clearing away dead leaves or overgrown plants and weeds. I admit that at one point last summer my family couldn't see our central air unit for the overgrowth of morning glory vines. I cleared out those old creepers as part of my spring cleaning. Now I just have to keep them away from the cooling system – and the tomato and zucchini plants, and everywhere else but the front fence.

Now that you can see the cooling unit again, move inside and change those air filters. Fresh filters reduce the strain on your cooling system, and they also improve air quality. Change them quarterly or more often in homes with allergy sufferers or smokers.

You have to decide how high you can set your thermostat while still maintaining a comfortable environment. Bumping the thermostat up at least 2 degrees can make a noticeable difference on your power bill.

Investing in a programmable thermostat can lead to even greater savings

You can help out the air conditioning effort by limiting heat generation. Natural light brightens a home, but makes a great deal of heat during the summer. Curtains, blinds and shades are cost-effective ways to beat that heat. Weather stripping and caulking around window panes and casings will also improve the function of your windows by keeping the cool air in and the hot air out. Applying solar film will further repel the solar radiation.

With an air conditioning plan in place, it's time to cook up some savings. Preparing dinner outside on the grill eliminates kitchen heat when you're trying to keep it cool. Substituting the microwave for the conventional oven will help, too.

Today's appliances are more energy efficient than ever. But despite their functionality and efficiency, most major household appliances give off heat when in use. During peak daytime temperatures, the residual heat from appliances can put an unnecessary strain on your home's cooling. Cooler temperatures in the early morning or late evening make these ideal times for running the dishwasher or washing and drying clothes.

When possible, turn off your dishwasher's dryer cycle. This prevents even more residual heat from warming your home and saves on your power bill. And remember that clothes line your mom or grandma used? Those poles and strings are monuments to savings when it comes to an energy-efficient summer. Washing your clothes in cold water and hanging them out for the sun to dry will definitely reduce household energy consumption.

As your summer heats up, call on your friends at Valley Rural Electric Cooperative for more ways to lower your power bill. You can also visit TogetherWeSave.com to find out how little changes around the house can add up to big energy savings.

Is this your money?

LATE LAST YEAR, more than $984,000 in capital credits refunds were distributed to eligible members and former members of the co-op.

Since that time, more than 250 of those checks were returned by the post office because of incorrect address information.

We are making every effort to return this money to its rightful owners.

Listed on the following pages are the names of the consumers whose checks have not been able to be delivered.

If you recognize a name and can provide an up-to-date address (or information about the executor of the estate or nearest relative if the member is deceased), please call us at 814-643-2650 or toll-free 800-432-0680.

You can also write to the Capital Credits Department, Valley REC, PO Box 477, Huntingdon, PA 16652-0477.

Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.
